

Press release - The shape of things to come

Nick Marchmont gave a fascinating talk about sacred geometry to an enthralled audience in the stable at Penlanole on Friday April 4. Nick explained how geometry is the sacred, universal language of light that underlies everything in creation. He went on to show how several basic shapes are the building blocks of all life, binding forces within atoms to the shape and composition of galaxies!

Nick expressed his belief that as human beings we have embedded within us a blueprint for our souls which is written in the sacred geometric language, so by interacting with sacred geometric forms we are communing with higher creation frequencies that resonate with this original blueprint and allow us to return to and remember our pure state of divine innocence.

It was an interesting theory that was beautifully backed up by the proof and examples presented by Nick, and everyone went home thoughtful and awe-inspired!
